certainly ten or afteen years, and most probably twenty.

Three times have the votors of the county, at a fair election, said that the old landmark (the courthouse) should not be moved to Ashland, or oven abandoned as the county seat; and they will so say again if given a fair chance, which they are determined to have; but why should we again have now the needless agitation and expense of an election on the question, with its attending strife and bitterness? The information indicated above (which will contain some surprises) will be laid before you at the earliest possible moment, and you have only to wait for it awhile in order that you may act advisedly as to whether you should or should not aid the effort persisted in by only a few tax-payers to remove your county seat, and determine from all the facts going to show the unwisdom of such a move whether you are willing or unwilling to bear the consequent increase of your taxes, as indicated, should the proposed removal be determined upon. Wait, that you may act advisedly in this important matter.
